

A PROPOSAL PREPARED FOR

Lucie Scuderi

COURTIER IMMOBILIER RÉSIDENTIEL & COMMERCIAL — RE/MAX DU CARTIER · MONTRÉAL · LAVAL

Listing Growth Strategy

Twenty years of keys handed over across Montréal and Laval — a RE/MAX Hall of Fame broker rated 4.9★ by the people who sold with her. A plan to let the next homeowners meet Lucie before they decide to sell — and turn that into listing appointments every week.

*Chaque maison est unique.
Ma stratégie l'est aussi.*

The standard-raiser Laval hasn't met yet.

A residential and commercial broker with over twenty years in the business and a place in the RE/MAX Hall of Fame — bilingual, trained to guide seniors through a move, and rated 4.9★ on Google by clients who mention her by name. Her own line says it: « J'élève les standards... et ça dérange. »

Homeowners pick their broker long before they call one — from a feed, a sign on the street or a neighbour's story. The plan: put Lucie on camera, film her listings, and turn both into ads that bring in home-value requests on Instagram and Facebook.

Nothing about how Lucie works needs to change. What needs to change is how many homeowners have seen her work before they decide to sell.

Nobody lists with a broker they've never met.

The SMART goal

One goal behind every video, every campaign and every report.

THE GOAL, IN ONE LINE

Win more listings across Montréal and Laval, turn years of “we should sell someday” into kitchen-table meetings with Lucie, and trace every signed listing to the campaign that brought it.

THE PLAN AT A GLANCE

Specific — homeowners, where she sells

Owners in Laval — Duvernay, Auteuil, Vimont — and Montréal's east end — Saint-Léonard, Mercier, Anjou — who plan to sell in the next three to twelve months — to move up, to downsize, or to settle a parent's home.

M

Measurable — requests, appointments, listings

Three headline numbers: home-value requests from campaigns, listing appointments booked, and listings signed from those leads.

Achievable — built on what exists

Twenty-plus years of sales, the RE/MAX Hall of Fame, a 4.9★ Google rating, a verified Instagram, Réflexe Aîné training and a website with every listing already in place.

R

Relevant — one listing is worth months

A single signed listing can cover more than a month of this engagement — and every seller is a future buyer and the source of the next referral.

T

Time-bound — October to December

Three months, reviewed monthly — fall listings signed now, and spring-market listing appointments booked before the holidays.

What we commit to. We own the content, campaigns, tracking and reports. What happens at the kitchen table — the market analysis, the asking price, the signature — is tracked, not promised.

From the feed to the sold sign

Selling a home isn't an impulse — it's a year of "maybe next spring" before one phone call. The plan is built around the whole cycle, not a single click.

Lucie is the advantage. Most broker ads are a headshot, a logo and a phone number. Twenty years of sales, a Hall of Fame plaque, a 4.9★ rating from clients who name her in their reviews, and a broker trusted with the hard files — estates, downsizing, a 60+visit search from Toronto — is proof no competitor can copy. Chaque maison est unique. The content shows it.

From the ad to the kitchen table

What a Laval homeowner sees, taps and fills in — in under a minute — on Instagram or Facebook.

1 See the ad

A 40-second tour of a home Lucie just sold nearby shows up between posts from friends and family.

2 Tap “En savoir plus”

One tap opens her website — no DMs, no phone tag during work hours.

3 Send the request

A new value page on her site, tracked by the Meta Pixel. It lands on Lucie's phone the minute it's sent.

Toc, toc. One street at a time.

After every new listing and every sale, 25 house-shaped door hangers go up on the surrounding streets. The little front door opens to reveal: "Your neighbour just sold. Curious what yours is worth?" — with a code that belongs to that street alone.

01

Just sold, just filmed

Every new listing and every sale gets a 30-second “street story” — the home, the street, Lucie on the doorstep — with the seller’s written OK.

02

25 doors, one street

TGS hangs 25 fold-open hangers on the surrounding streets within the week. The little front door opens to the invitation and a QR code.

03

Scanned to the street

Each street gets its own code, VOISIN-001 onward — so you see exactly which streets turned into value requests and listing appointments.

The campaign behind it. One of the four Golden Standard campaigns runs alongside: the street story shown to homeowners around that part of Laval, and a “doors knocked so far” update each month. No price or address without the seller’s written consent, never on a door marked “no flyers”, and up to four streets a month.

Who we're talking to

Three sellers — all Laval homeowners — each reached differently.

The move-up family

Outgrew the condo in Auteuil or the semi in Vimont. Needs to sell and buy in the right order — without paying two mortgages or moving twice.

Best reached: Instagram Reels, listing tours, “buy first or sell first?”, neighbourhood guides

The downsizer

Twenty-five years in the same bungalow; the kids have moved out. Wants an unhurried process, a broker who listens, and help with the next place.

Best reached: Facebook feed, “the next chapter” videos, Lucie’s Réflexe Aîné approach

The family executor

Settling a parent’s home, often from a distance. Needs someone to coordinate the notary, the inspector and the clean-out — with patience and kindness.

Best reached: Facebook feed, “selling a parent’s home” content, retargeting of site visitors

WHAT THEY CARE ABOUT

WHY VIDEO WORKS HERE

Your feed today is sharp, on-brand graphics — they say who you are, but they can't let anyone hear you. And Meta's housing rules don't let real-estate ads target by age, so the content has to do the targeting: a “next chapter” video finds the downsizer, a listing tour finds the move-up family.

What we'll create

Built for the OACIQ rules. Every piece is checked before it goes live: Lucie's licence title and "RE/MAX du Cartier inc., agence immobilière" on every ad, no sale price or address without the seller's written consent, market figures sourced and dated, client stories only with written consent, and a copy of every ad kept on file. All ads run under Meta's housing category.

Campaigns built from the content

Every video in the calendar doubles as an ad on Instagram or Facebook. What performs gets the budget, and every click lands on her value page — so the cost of each listing appointment is tracked from day one.

Where we go from here

Six steps to the first listing traced to a campaign.

01

✍ Choose the plan, share the baseline

Standard or The Golden Standard. Then roughly how many listings you sign a year, where they come from today — referrals, signs, Centris — and how many value requests you get a month.

02

🔑 Grant access

Meta Business Manager, the ad account, @luciescuderi.remax and your Facebook page, and your website for the new value page and pixel — or we host the page for you if the RE/MAX site doesn't allow it.

03

🔍 Confirm the listings and the streets

Which current listings we film first, the sellers' written consent to show their home, and the first streets for the door hangers.

04

📞 Set the call-back rule

Who calls back value requests and how fast — the first hour is when a seller is still choosing. The ad spend is already covered by your plan.

05

📅 Book the first shoots

A half-day with Lucie on camera this month, plus each current listing — filmed around showings, with the sellers' OK.

06

📅 Approve the October calendar

Sign off on the mix so production and the first campaigns can start on the first.

We come to you. Shoots happen around your showings and signings — an early morning or between appointments — so no client ever waits on the camera. Laval and the east end are a short drive from our studio on Chabanel.
